Tested Menus and Recipes: Based on a Low Cost Dietary (Classic Reprint) Annie L. Weeks,2018-02-05 Excerpt from Tested Menus and Recipes: Based on a Low Cost Dietary Obviously, the immediate aim in determining a safe minimum for the family food allowance was to help the family make the best of the situation. Even larger issues, however, were involved. Before a truly satisfactory ration could be outlined it was necessary to know the dan ger line, or rather the safety line below which it was not possible to go. The matter of reasonable leeway could then be more easily determined. It is hoped that the present pamphlet may be of some service to those who are concerned with this problem of low cost dietaries. It seemed best to publish the calculations 011 which the work is based since these may prove of interest in the case of those whose responsibility lies along the line of helping to develop the literature of this subject. The unit system is used since this seems the most convenient way to approximate food needs for a group of families. Individual dietaries would of course be calculated upon the basis of individual needs. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Martyn's Menu Dictionary (Classic Reprint) Charles Martyn,2015-09-27 Excerpt from Martyn's Menu Dictionary So great is the number of French words, names and terms in use for dining and culinary purposes, that it would require a large volume to list all of them, and it has been difficult to decide just where to draw the line between those which do and those which do not need explanation or translation, but I believe that the selection contained in this dictionary will be found of practical service when compiling or revising menus or bills of fare, etc., and on other similar occasions. It should also be remarked that this book is not intended to take the place of works like Fellows Chef's Reminder and a Selection of Dishes, or Senn's French Menus, both of which excellent books are in purpose a dictionary of dishes - instead of, like this, a dictionary of words and phrases. The making of the book was suggested by the little volume entitled Latin de Cuisine, published several years ago, and in conception (before this work commenced to grow to its present larger size), I found many suggestions and a good deal of assistance in a study of its pages. In conclusion, I take pleasure in acknowledging that in the somewhat arduous task of compilation I received much valuable assistance from Mr. Adolphe Meyer, author of The Post-Graduate Cookery Book and other equally well known works. The Newlywed Menu Suggestions (Classic Reprint) Lucien McDowell Garrard,2018-05-15 Excerpt from The Newlywed Menu Suggestions There are thousands of housekeepers who strive to economize in the cost of living, who are distressingly in need of a well arranged and studied menu, to enable them to accomplish their purpose. This we give, and we believe it will be followed by thousands; thereby saving many dollars each year to their husbands, and especially those husbands who have young and inexperienced, but thoughtful wives, who want to start right. Even though these suggestions be followed to the letter, they are ample for the sustenance, health and welfare of two people, but the wife can build upon them 'whenever her inclination and finances warrant. We believe this little booklet will be welcomed and will instill syste matic economy at the time when most needed by young wives. The Principles of Menu Making (Classic Reprint) Anna E. Richardson,2015-08-04 Excerpt from The Principles of Menu Making The question of the daily menu is one of the most important ones that faces the housewife. What food shall she give her family to eat? In what proportion shall she give these foods to meet the individual needs of each member of the group? Food a Necessity of Life. Nature has provided no substitute for food. Food is absolutely necessary to our life. Man must eat to live. Common experience shows us that if the body is denied food for long, it wastes away, and finally death results. Life nourishes best where there is an abundant and suitable food supply. So well recognized is this importance of food that in making up the family budget, for moderate incomes, the largest proportion of the income is for food, and, if need be, as much as two thirds of the income may be spent on food. The housewife, who in most cases does the buying for the family, thus has a very large share of the income to spend, and this must be spent wisely, if she is to get the returns due her family. Choice of Food. - Long ago when man had to utilize for food, roots, grains, and flesh that were at hand, choice was so limited that the purchasing of food was an easy matter. Now that facilities for transportation place most foods at our command, choice becomes difficult. This is still further increased by the fact that by special cultivation all sorts of vegetables and fruits are available, in and out of season. The housewife is in a quandary to know what to choose. Factors in Determining Choice. - What are some of the factors which must determine her choice? Are the dearest foods always the best? By no means. High prices and high nutritive values do not go hand in hand. Too often exorbitant prices are paid for foods out of season which furnish little real nourishment. The important guides in determining what sort of foods we shall buy are(1), the use of the food in the body, and(2), the composition of the food. Uses of Food.
