Memory Search By A Memorist Charles P. Thompson, Thaddeus M. Cowan, Jerome Frieman, 2013-05-13 This book describes the first comprehensive experimental research program on an individual who exhibits exceptional memory. Rajan Mahadevan, the subject of these investigations, won a place in the Guinness Book of Records for reciting pi to 31,811 decimal places, can learn matrices up to size 20 X 20, and can produce memory spans above 60 for digits. Utilizing the methodology and theories of modern cognitive psychology, the authors systematically investigated Rajan's memory skills. A wide range of experiments and tests were conducted with Rajan and four control subjects. These include memory span tests for digits and letters, memory for various kinds of non-numeric information, tests of working memory, learning and retention of numeric matrices, memory and visual searches of the digits of pi, and lexical decision tasks with the digits of pi. The authors describe how they came to understand the way Rajan stored and now retrieves the decimal digits of pi, how he learns and retrieves matrices, and how he encodes and retrieves digits in a memory span task. Although his strategy for memorizing and retrieving digits is unique in the literature on people with extraordinary memory, the authors show how their investigations of Rajan contribute to our understanding of memory.

How to Memorize 1000 Digits of Pi Paul Pence, 2017-01-17 It doesn't take a photographic memory or an IQ of 200 to memorize very very long numbers -- this book provides you the step-by-step tools you need to perform an amazing feat of recall. Learning a few simple techniques and remembering 100 sentences gives you the ability to recall 1000 digits of pi.

Short Term Memory for Simultaneous Digits Robert Edwin Warren, 1968

GW's Easy Number Memory System Gregory S. Walsh, 2017-04-16 The science of memory training has long been based, interestingly enough, not on left-brain rote memorization of numbers, or items on a list, but on the right-brain connection of numbers, or items on a list, with some visual cue or image. It's called a peg system. You learn the pegs, the visual cues, and then you hang your number or item on the peg. The idea, or rather the proven science, is that the peg is easier for your memory banks to recall than the number or item itself. Ancient Greek storytellers used a 'peg system' to memorize 25,000 lines of poetry, such as Homer's famous mythological poems The Iliad and The Odyssey. To assist with their voluminous assimilation of text they connected each line of poetry with an item they imagined set in one of myriad rooms in a magnificent royal palace. Thus, as they entered the poem they imagined entering the palace doors, and as the story of the poem progressed they proceeded with revealing in their mind's eye one intricately designed room at a time, until the poem ended and they exited the palace. We see the world in living color. So I decided that I would base GW's Easy Number Memory System(tm) on various colors. There are 26 letters in the alphabet, but I only needed ten letters in GW's Numerical alphabet, that is, ten colors to represent the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 & 0. From those ten numbers I can represent any whole number from 1 to infinity. Thankfully, we won't need to memorize beyond 100 digits for the training drills in this book! I was taught the Secondary Complimentary Color Wheel at the age of five, and that simple arrangement of color would cover me on six of my ten numbers. Once I had assigned colors to my first six numerical letters, I still needed four more colors to cover all the numerical digits from 1 through 9 plus 0. I thought about iconic colors and the first two that popped into my mind were gold and silver, so I assigned those colors as follows: Gold as 7 and Silver as 8. That left just two numbers, 9 and 0. The final iconic colors that rounded out my alphabet were Black for 9 and White for 0. Black is actually the absence of color, but I'm taking poetic license here and making it one of my ten numerical letters. White light is actually the blending of the three primary colors, red, blue and yellow. And so I gave Black to the number 9 and White to zero. You can think of GW's Easy Number Memory System(tm) as smart software for your brain. You have the ability to literally re-wire your brain to do so many powerful things, far beyond simply memorizing numbers through GW's peg system. But this simple memory system will generate neurogenesis (new neuron cells), steroidogenesis (endogenous production of hormones) and synaptogenesis (development of new synaptic connections) in your central nervous system (your brain). All things that will improve your cognitive functioning, now and well into your long life.
