Drive Encryption

Trevor B. Florence

Hard Drive Encryption Noite.pl, Hackers, crackers, spies, my wife, everybody wants to know what I have on the disk … and I use cryptosetup, LOL. Rich support of protocols and cryptographic algorithms in the Linux system enabled creation of many tools using them. Some of the most popular tools are programs for encoding disks or partitions. In this micro-course there are the main procedures of encoding disks and partitions used in administrating this operating system.

KiwiVault Trevor B. Florence,2009 While many people use USB flash drives, most do not protect their stored documents. Solutions for protecting flash drives exist but inherently limit functionality found in unprotected drives such as portability, usability, and the ability to share documents between multiple people. In addition, other drawbacks are introduced such as the possibility of losing access to protected documents if a password is lost. Assuming protecting portable documents is important, in order for people to be willing to protect their documents they should be required to make as few sacrifices in functionality as possible. We introduce KiwiVault, a USB flash drive encryption solution that retains more of the functionality found in unprotected storage devices than preceding solutions. In addition, this thesis reviews encryption solutions appropriate for portable data storage, reviews security components used by KiwiVault, discusses the design and implementation of KiwiVault, discusses a user study and threat analysis conducted to validate KiwiVault as a solution, and proposes future work.
