WHERE THE DEAD MEN LIE AND OTHER POEMS BARCROFT BOAKE,1897

Keep Me Alive Natasha Cooper,2004-10-08 Why did investigative journalist Jamie Maxden die? The coroner says it was suicide. The case is closed. Only one man fights to reopen it. Will Applewood is sure Jamie was about to expose a scandal that would shame the British food industry. But Will is notorious for his conspiracy theories. No one listens to him. In despair he turns to his barrister, Trish Maguire. Felled by food poisoning in the middle of Will's case against a huge supermarket chain, Trish is ready to believe any story about dangers lurking inside the pretty packaging of the food we eat. Even though she has more than enough to do already with the trial, an attempt to save a child at terrible risk, and plenty of emotional complications of her own, she agrees to help. Will's campaign takes her deep into the countryside, revealing a world that seems quite different from the metropolitan life she knows. But human nature doesn't change---whatever the environment. Moving between the ravishing landscape and the grim depths of the inner city, trying to save lives and sanity, inexhaustible Trish is driven into a crusade---both personal and professional---that combines excitement, drama, and agonizing human tragedy.

With the Paras in Helmand Craig Allen,2011-07-12 Craig Allen, a Paratrooper for 29 years, returned to 2 PARA as a reservist and unofficial photographer for the Battlegroup's dramatic 2008 Tour in Helmand. As both a respected soldier and photographer he had unrivaled access to the fighting and moved from area to area following the action. Every evening he wrote up his experiences and those of the men he was with, whose trust he had as a member of the club. He had a ringside seat to a very costly summer tour, with the Taliban proving themselves worthy enemies to even the most elite British Army soldiers. His story tells in superb action photographs and no-nonsense prose of the hardships, courage, fears and cost suffered by front line soldiers over prolonged periods. He captures the color of life and death in Afghanistan for both combatants and the luckless civilian population caught up in this vicious spiral of war. An unforgettable book which has true visual appeal.

She soon reveals that she has given birth to a son, the only heir to Azzam's rule—and a potent threat to the Syrian president's powerful wife. Now, to get Bianca's cooperation, Court must bring her son out of Syria alive. With the clock ticking on Bianca's life, he goes off the grid in a free-fire zone in the Middle East—and winds up in the right place at the right time to take a shot at bringing one of the most brutal dictatorships on earth to a close. . . .

Invasion of Privacy Perri O'Shaughnessy,2007-12-18 Twelve years ago, a young girl disappeared. Now a filmmaker has made a movie about it. The girl's parents call it invasion of privacy. A woman lawyer calls it murder. The bloodstains on the courtroom floor belong to attorney Nina Reilly. Months earlier she'd been shot during a heated murder trial. She should have died that day. Instead, Nina has returned to the same Lake Tahoe court. Her only concession to her lingering fear is to give up criminal law. She figures an invasion of privacy lawsuit is a nice, safe civil action that will help her support her young son and pay the bills for her one-woman law office. She figures wrong. Nina's client is Terry London, a filmmaker whose documentary about a missing girl is raising disturbing questions. The girl's distraught parents believe the film invades their privacy. But Terry's brutal murder changes everything. Breaking her promise to herself, Nina decides to defend Terry's accused murderer, a man she'd known years before and hoped never to see again. Suddenly the secrets of Nina's past are beginning to surface in a murder case that gets more dangerous every day. The evidence against her client is shocking and ironclad--a video of Terry's dying words. The only chance Nina has to save the man may be illegal. And if it fails, Nina may lose the case, her practice...and even her life.

And who is the mysterious old man who waves to Kruger as he flies overhead, only to demand to be left in peace when they meet on the ground? John and his latest girlfriend set off on a journey to uncover Andrew's real whereabouts, but Andrew's secrets aren't the only ones threatening to be unearthed. Burning Up Anne Marsh, A standalone small town suspense romance from New York Times bestselling author Anne Marsh about love, survival, and finding that one special place and person where you belong. Smoke jumper Jack Donovan has lived for the thrill of flying over the burning California hills, the intensity of diving into the inferno, the glory of taming the forces of nature. He's steadfast. Protective. One-hundred-percent loyal. Especially when it comes to Lily Cortez, the one woman he can never have. He left their small California mountain town of Strong when he couldn't resist her or their incendiary physical connection any longer. But when a serial arsonist strikes in Strong, Jack will make it his mission to find out who is threatening the people he loves. Even if it means getting close to Lily. Even if it means falling for her in every way. Even if it means uncovering the secrets she's keeping. The free-spirited lavender farmer doesn't need a firefighting white knight. Especially since the mountain-man-sized solution that knocks on the front door of her farmhouse is the man who broke her teenage heart. Allowing a smoke jumper to crash land in the life she's fought so hard to start over, will only lead to more hurt. Especially since a stalker from her past will put them both in danger, costing them so much more than a second chance at love. Author's Note: Opposites attract. Second chance at love. Girl in danger. Lots of firefighting puns. Small-town hijinks. A pining, chivalrous, overprotective hero who has no filter when it comes to how he'd like to be with our lavender-farming heroine. A free-spirited, wild-child, I-can-do-it-myself heroine who is certain that a lavender farm is the best dream a girl could have—until a white-knighting smoke jumper knocks on her front door. Steam level: Hotter than a geothermal geyser in Iceland. Suspense level: Also incendiary.
