Knowledge Exploration in Life Science Informatics Jesús A. López, Emilio Benfenati, Werner Dubitzky, 2005-01-27
 This volume of the Springer Lecture Notes in Computer Science series contains the contributions presented at the International Symposium on Knowledge Exploration in Life Science Informatics (KELSI 2004) held in Milan, Italy, 25-26 November 2004. The two main objectives of the symposium were: • To explore the symbiosis between information and knowledge technologies and various life science disciplines, such as biochemistry, biology, neuroscience, medical research, social sciences, and so on. • To investigate the synergy among different life science informatics areas, including cheminformatics, bioinformatics, neuroinformatics, medical informatics, systems biology, sociomics, and others. Modern life sciences investigate phenomena and systems at the level of molecules, cells, tissues, organisms, and populations. Typical areas of interest include natural evolution, development, disease, behavior, cognition, and consciousness. This quest is generating an overwhelming and fast-growing amount of data, information, and knowledge, reflecting living systems at different levels of organization. Future progress of the life sciences will depend on effective and efficient management, sharing, and exploitation of these resources by computational means.
