Writers' Houses and the Making of Memory Harald Hendrix,2012-08-06 This innovative new book examines the ways in which writers’ houses contribute to the making of memory. It shows that houses built or inhabited by poets and novelists both reflect and construct the author’s private and artistic persona; it also demonstrates how this materialized process of self-fashioning is subsequently appropriated within various strategies and policies of cultural memory.

La Casa Embrujada del Infierno Mark L'Estrange,2022-11-21 Cuando Catherine Porter asesina a su único hijo y se quita la vida, nadie entiende el por qué. Vilipendiada por su crimen, se convierte en sinónimo de todo lo malo y perverso entre los lugareños, y los padres comienzan a utilizar su nombre para asustar a sus hijos descarriados y hacer que se comporten. Poco después de su muerte, comienzan a circular informes de que su fantasma ha sido visto dentro de su antigua casa. Con el paso de los años, los avistamientos continúan, haciendo que la mayoría de los ocupantes de la casa huyan de la propiedad, gritando en la noche, para no volver jamás. Cuando la familia Jefferson se muda a la casa, deciden celebrar una sesión de espiritismo para deshacerse por fin de su indeseado huésped. Pero al hacerlo, desatan algo aún más aterrador: una fuerza malévola que no se detendrá ante nada para recuperar su dominio.

Greek and Roman Small Size Sculpture Giovanni Colzani,Clemente Marconi,Fabrizio Slavazzi,2023-10-23 Considerations about size and scale have always played a central role within Greek and Roman visual culture, deeply affecting sculptural production. Both Greeks and Romans, in particular, had a clear notion of “colossality” and were able to fully exploit its implications with sculpture in many different areas of social, cultural and religious life. Instead, despite their ubiquitous presence, an equal and contrary categorization for small size statues does not seem to have existed in Greek and Roman culture, leading one to wonder what were the ancient ways of conceptualizing sculptural representations in a format markedly smaller than “life-size.” Even in the context of modern scholarship on Classical Art, few notions appear to be as elusive as that of “small sculpture”, often treated with a certain degree of diffidence well summarized in the formula Klein, aber Kunst? In fact, a large and heterogeneous variety of objects corresponds to this definition: all kinds of small sculpture, from statuettes to miniatures, in a variety of materials including stone, bronze, and terracotta, associated with a great array of functions and contexts, and with extremely different levels of manufacture and patronage. It would be a major misunderstanding to think of these small sculptures in general as nothing more than a cheap and simplified alternative to larger scale statues. Compared with those, their peculiar format allowed for a wider range of choices, in terms, for example, of use of either cheap or extremely valuable materials (not only marble and bronze, but also gold and silver, ivory, hard stones, among others), methods of production (combining seriality and variation), modes of fruition (such as involving a degree of intimacy with the beholder, rather than staging an illusion of “presence”). Furthermore, their pervasive presence in both private and public spaces at many levels of Greek and Roman society presents us with a privileged point of view on the visual literacy of a large and varied public. Although very different in many respects, small-sized sculptures entertained often a rather ambivalent relationship with their larger counterparts, drawing from them at the same time schemes, forms and iconographies. By offering a fresh, new analysis of archaeological evidence and literary sources, through a variety of disciplinary approaches, this volume helps to illuminate this rather complex dynamic and aims to contribute to a better understanding of the status of Greek and Roman small size sculpture within the general development of ancient art.

Mobility and Integration in Urban Argentina Mark D. Szuchman,2014-09-10 Between the 1870s, when the great influx of European immigrants began, and the start of World War I, Argentina underwent a radical alteration of its social composition and patterns of economic productivity. Mark Szuchman, in this groundbreaking study, examines the occupational, residential, educational, and economic patterns of mobility of some four thousand men, women, and children who resided in Córdoba, Argentina's most important interior city, during this changeful era. Through several kinds of samples, Szuchman provides a widely encompassing social picture of Córdoba, describing, among others, the unskilled laborer, the immigrant bachelor in search of roots and identity, the merchant seeking or giving credit, and the member of the elite, blind to some of the realities around him. The challenge that the pursuit of security entailed for most people and the failure of so many to persist successfully form a large part of that picture. The author has made ample use of quantitative techniques, but secondary materials are also utilized to provide social perspectives that round out and humanize the quantitative data. The use of record linkage as the essential research method makes this work the first book on Argentina to follow similar and very successful research methodologies employed by U.S. historians.

Reimagining Theologies of Marriage in Contexts of Domestic Violence Rachel Starr,2018-04-17 Domestic violence is a significant threat to women’s survival. But Christian understandings of marriage often prevent women from resisting abusive relationships. Can the Church’s teaching on marriage be reshaped so that it helps women to survive, rather than encourage them to submit to their husband, bear their cross, or sacrifice themselves for the sake of their marriage? Focusing on everyday practices of marriage in two very different contexts: Argentina and England, Reimagining Theologies of Marriage in Contexts of Domestic Violence considers how Christian understandings of marriage as a covenant or sacrament relate to the lived experience of marriage. Drawing on Augustine’s notion of the goods of marriage, and on belief in the saving power of marriage, this book suggests that only when the wellbeing of bodies is central to a marriage can it have the power to save.

Videogiociamo dunque impariamo? Ximena López,2010 Dottorato di ricerca in Innovazione e valutazione dei sistemi di istruzione (coordinato da Benedetto Vertecchi) Quello della ricerca sull’innovazione e la valutazione dei sistemi d’istruzione è tra gli aspetti della problematica educativa che richiamano maggiore interesse non solo da parte degli studiosi del settore, ma anche dei responsabili politici, degli insegnanti, delle organizzazioni produttive. È questa la ragione che ha indotto ad istituire un corso di dottorato specificamente rivolto ad incrementare la conoscenza nel settore. E certamente i volumi che contengono i risultati delle ricerche effettuate dai nuovi dottori offrono la testimonianza della complessità dei temi affrontati e della rilevanza degli apporti forniti ai fini di una migliore comprensione delle linee di sviluppo dell’educazione nel mondo contemporaneo. Un segno della vitalità della ricerca educativa è certamente costituito dagli apporti di nuovi studiosi alla conoscenza. È questa la ragione dell’importanza che hanno assunto i corsi per il conseguimento del dottorato di ricerca: tali corsi offrono un contesto organizzativo favorevole al manifestarsi di linee originali di indagine. I volumi della collana Ricerche dottorali pongono a disposizione della comunità scientifica, impegnata a conseguire nuovi progressi per l’educazione attraverso l’indagine sul campo, i risultati ottenuti dai dottori di ricerca.
