IBM System z Personal Development Tool: Volume 1 Introduction and Reference Bill Ogden,IBM Redbooks,2013-06-24 This IBM® Redbooks® publication introduces the IBM System z® Personal Development Tool (zPDT), which runs on an underlying Linux system based on an Intel processor. zPDT provides a System z system on a PC capable of running current System z operating systems, including emulation of selected System z I/O devices and control units. It is intended as a development, demonstration, and learning platform and is not designed as a production system. This book, providing an introduction, is the first of three volumes. The second volume describes the installation of zPDT (including the underlying Linux, and a particular z/OS® distribution) and basic usage patterns. The third volume discusses more advanced topics that may not interest all zPDT users. The IBM order numbers for the three volumes are SG24-7721, SG24-7722, and SG24-7723. An additional volume (SG24-7859) describes the use of zPDT in a Parallel Sysplex configuration. The systems discussed in these volumes are complex, with elements of Linux (for the underlying PC machine), z/Architecture® (for the core zPDT elements), System z I/O functions (for emulated I/O devices), and z/OS (providing the System z application interface), and possibly with other System z operating systems. We assume the reader is familiar with general concepts and terminology of System z hardware and software elements and with basic PC Linux characteristics.

Overview of license types Administrators manage three types of licenses, according to the subscription type. These license types are authenticated differently. Named user licenses, based on the customer's Autodesk Account, are automatically authenticated when the customer first runs a product after signing in to Autodesk Account. Standalone licenses are tied to specific devices and use serial numbers. When customers first run the product, standalone licenses are authenticated either silently by Autodesk servers or when customers are prompted to enter a serial number. Network licenses, managed with Network License Manager (NLM) software, are authenticated by pre-configured network license servers. Sometimes, customers may be asked to give license server information when they first run a product. You can identify your license type for each product in the Products and Services section of Autodesk Account.
