Network Communication Protocols Map Poster Jielin Dong,2004-09 View the major computer network protocols, by OSI layer, in this valuable reference poster. View protocols mapped to the OSI 7 layer model to get a clear view of communication layers Grouping of protocols by functions such as security, VoIP, VPN, and storage, as well as by sponsor organizations/vendors provides helpful guidance on technologies A must-have tool useful for workplace reference and employee training After years of development of communications standards and generations of networking architecture, communication protocols have become a very complex subject. Different technology standards bodies have defined various networking protocols, and all major vendors have their proprietary protocols as well. Understanding the overall picture of communications protocols has become a huge challenge for IT and networking professionals at all levels. The Network Communication Protocols Map is designed to address these challenges by providing a clear picture of the logical relationship of protocols old and new, open standard or proprietary, in the framework of OSI model. The poster displays hundreds of data and telecommunication protocols from all major standard bodies and technology vendors. It logically illustrates all communication protocols and operation systems in the framework of OSI 7-layers model and by major technology groups. The poster includes protocols related to TCP/IP, SAN, VOIP, VPN/Security, LAN, WLAN, MAN, WAN, ISO, IBM, Novell, SUN, HP, Apple, Microsoft, as well as from other vendors such as Cisco Systems. Protocols by standard organizations such as IETF, ITU and IEEE, are also included. Dr. Jielin Dong, owner and President of Javvin Corp, has more than ten years of working experience in leading networking companies such as Cisco Systems, Lucent Technologies, and Network Associates. She has an advanced degree in Physics and Electric Computer Engineering from the Carnegie Mellon University.
