Digital Media in Education Michelle Cannon,2018-06-19 This book argues for dynamic and relevant school experiences for primary and early secondary learners that embed digital media production. It proposes a vision of literacy that combines new technologies with multiple modes of meaning-making. Drawing on theories related to cultural studies, media literacy, anthropology, and creativity, the author explores learning strategies with digital media based on an empowering, values-driven framework. The book advances innovative teaching methods, critiquing educational 'reforms' that marginalise media and fail to engage with the complex tensions and textures of modern pedagogy. Positioning film and media-making as vital practices in schools that nurture the skills, dispositions and competencies of modern literacy, the model foregrounds connections between human agency, cognition, and creative practice. This innovative book will appeal to students and scholars of creativity, digital media production, primary education and literacy.

Multiple Listing Anne Underwood Grant,1998 Introducing Sydney Teague: A Southern adwoman caught in a campaign of murder... Sydney Teague has it all together--barely. A single mother, the owner of an advertising agency, she's a woman with one foot in the Old South, and the other firmly planted in the new. But while Sydney grows her business, meets the needs of her two children, and lives life one day at a time, an old friend hasn't been so lucky. Sydney's hard-loving, hard-living friend, Crystal, is dead, and Sydney wants to know why. The answer is not coming from the police--not even from a handsome cop who shows more than a professional interest in Sydney. Instead, Sydney discovers that Crystal's brutal death is part of an even more shocking crime spree--and that some of the clues lie in the steamy city of Charlotte's golden real estate market. Even worse: Someone Sydney knows all too well may be holding the key to a case of multiple murder....
