Smart Grocery Shopping/ Shop Smart (Living Skills) PJ Gray,Jane Gardner,2016-03-01 Each 5-book set in the series covers a key aspect of independent living, such as managing money, finding and keeping a job, or completing common household tasks. Developed for students reading at the most basic level, the books range in readability from 1.0-1.7 and have Lexile scores of 150 to 240. Each book is actually two books in one, with a nonfiction side and a fiction side. The nonfiction side teaches students about an important life skills topic, and the fiction side helps them generalize the skills as they read about teens in real-world situations. LIVING SKILLS: Build students living skills with this five-book set. Important aspects of living and managing basic skills on your own are explored in these nonfiction/fiction flip books. Topics include: finding a place to live and moving in, making a grocery list, buying groceries, housekeeping and keeping things clean, and cooking your meals.

Screen Smart Sam Nicole Rawson,2021-05-13 Let's face it, kids love screens. But they don't know what's best for their own good! Follow Sam on a journey from being a distracted, screen obsessed youngster to a confident, screen smart teen. Written in gender neutral terms, children can relate to Sam's struggles keeping the addictive screen bad habit monsters away with new rules that help create new healthy habits. This read-aloud story is a great conversation starter for parents to talk about why limiting screen time is necessary and encourages social emotional learning opportunities. The addictive and stimulating programming design of apps and games makes all types of screens irresistible to children, leaving parents feeling like the bad guys when trying to limit. But this book makes it easy to talk about why parent support is essential Holly, educator and parent. Featuring easy-to-understand science about the addictive nature of screens and how it affects the body and brain, this internationally-acclaimed book engages young kids to think about how their time would be better served interacting with others off-line. Parents can access resources via the book website www.ScreenSmartFamilies.org. It's never too early to start talking to children about why healthy screen routines are essential! Book Review: Screen Smart Sam is a must-have for your family's library at home. Following Sam on his journey of screen time addiction, shows the reader how too much time on devices can be detrimental to a child's health. Sam began addicted to his phone at an early age and chose to look at his phone in place of sleeping, talking to friends face to face, engaging in physical activity, and being present in the moment. Parents recognize his obsession with his device and choose to become a "Screen Smart Family." The Author, Nicole Rawson is an expert in Screen Smart Techniques and is the founder of Screen Time Clinic. In this book, she provides families with simple and useful techniques to support families and get them on track to becoming Screen Smart. As a School Psychologist, I am well aware of the dangers of too much screen time on children. Screen Smart Sam is an excellent book that teaches families about the dangers of too much screen time, and it provides tools to support children on how to use screen time more appropriately. I highly recommend this book! -- -Marla, School Psychologist

  What Is Smart? Carly Yoon,Ella Chuharski,2017-05-12 What is Smart? is a book authored by four middle school students and one high school student, about unique and innovative perspectives on how to view what might be considered smart actions within a global community. The authors' collective experience in learning about Africa through the Pencils for Africa educational program informs their perspectives and expands their viewpoints. The authors are compelled to travel beyond conventional norms of what is considered smart, to new views and vistas of smart actions, such as building a library in the slums of Kenya, that provide windows into possibilities and potential they had not previously considered. The What is Smart? book is a journey of exploration and investigation by these five student authors and the members of their global community, of what it actually means to be smart in an increasingly interdependent multicultural and multidisciplinary world.
