Using Web 2.0 for Health Information Paula Younger,Peter Morgan,2011 Working together is a particular strength of information professionals in all sectors. In the area of health information in particular, the potential for using the internet for collaborative working is immense. Since it was first formally described in 2004, what is currently known as Web 2.0 has affected every library and information sector. Web 2.0 has tremendous potential to transform health information delivery still further. Although there have been any individual articles examining Web 2.0 applications and methods of working, and there are many individual examples of best practice, substantive works that synthesise this experience in one volume are rare. This new book is designed to meet this need, by drawing together international case studies and reflections on using Web 2.0. The book blends practical insights, theory and reflective approaches to offer a cohesive overview of how Web 2.0 is already changing health and medical information work. Main strands include: enhancing medical, nursing and health education information literacy in a health information environment supporting research supporting clinical care developing a service presence using Web 2.0 using social networking to develop an outreach service. Readership: Although the focus of the book is health information, it would be relevant to anyone who would like to gain an insight into this innovative and cost-effective method of delivering and sharing information. It is equally relevant for those new to Web 2.0, or those with more experience wishing to gain further insight into its application.

Young Talent Innovation Telefónica Scholarship. Measuring the Impact of Innovation on Corporations Vicente Manzano, David, Reigosa Domínguez, Pablo, 2022-09-06 In this research project we will try to measure the impact of innovation in corporations by using a statistical device known as the Technology Acceptance Model. In order to cover a sample we will focus on Generation Z, which is set to be the future investment force.

The objective of the project is to obtain a reliable behavioral pattern and consumer profile acquired through a process of survey research and testing. In these surveys we will measure the relevance of key Industry 4.0 technologies for the selected sample, as well as the most relevant aspects they value when using them. Once the survey has been collected, we will weigh the results and try to interpret the relationships between the different answers, seeking to corroborate the questions posed at the beginning of the project. This work lays the foundations for further research due to the multiple limitations we have encountered, among which time and knowledge limitations stand out. The future project will provide answers to the unknowns that have not yet been corroborated and require complex statistical processes.
