Size of Tabs David W. Rees, William N. Kama, 1959 This research was conducted to obtain information pertaining to the design of index tabs as used on check-lists to facilitate handling. The experiment was designed to investigate the performance of subjects in locating particular sections within check-uses as a function of tab size. The interactions of tab size with degree of subject encumbrance and tab position were also investigated. The results support the following design conclusions: 1. Provision of tabs along the left margin of a check-list significantly improves facility-of-access to information within the check-list. 2. Facility-of-access improves with increase in tab dimensions up to at least the 3/4 x 3/4 inch size.--Abstract.
