U. S. Postal Service Phillip Herr,2010 Over 80% of the approx. 200 billion mail pieces processed and delivered by the U.S. Postal Service (USPS) last year was sent by commercial mailers that barcode, sort, or transport mail to get lower postage rates. Starting in May 2009, USPS will encourage these mailers to use new barcodes that have increased capabilities as part of Intelligent Mail, a new program. According to USPS, Intelligent Mail is the most complex change it has ever undertaken. This report describes: (1) the Intelligent Mail program and the status of implementation efforts; and (2) the key risks to implementing Intelligent Mail and how USPS is addressing these risks. Includes recommendations. Charts and tables.

Postal Service U S Government Accountability Office (G,U. S. Government Accountability Office (,2013-06 In response to a congressional request, GAO conducted a statistical survey of the Washington, D.C., and the Cincinnati/Dayton, Ohio area to determine the U.S. Postal Service's (USPS) error rate in computing postage on individual letters and parcels that were weighed, specifically: (1) the nature and extent of postage errors; and (2) whether scale maintenance procedures affected the accuracy of postage paid. GAO found that: (1) postage calculations were accurate most of the time; (2) of the 3,001 pieces of mail sampled in Washington, D.C., 3.4 percent had incorrect postage charges; (3) of the 2,924 pieces of mail sampled in the Cincinnati/Dayton, Ohio area, 1.9 percent had incorrect charges; (4) postal employees' use of incorrect rate information and inaccurate scales, as well as misread scales, resulted in overcharges and undercharges; (5) customers caused some postage errors by affixing too much postage to their mail before submitting it to the postal clerk; (6) 13 percent of the scales were inaccurate; (7) USPS is installing electronic scales to ensure greater accuracy in postage rates; and (8) as of May 1986, USPS had distributed certified test weights to 90 percent of the retail offices to test scales daily for accuracy.

U. S. Postal Service U S Government Accountability Office (G,U. S. Government Accountability Office (,2013-06 Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO assessed the: (1) extent of competition that the U.S. Postal Service (USPS) could face in the marketplace if Congress suspended the extremely urgent double postage rule that gives it the exclusive right to deliver such letters; and (2) financial impact of such a change on USPS revenues. GAO found that: (1) the double postage rule requires carriers to charge twice as much as the USPS rate for delivery of extremely urgent letters; (2) suspension of the rule could allow private carriers to deliver extremely urgent first-class letters for as little as $3; (3) USPS currently delivers about 99 percent of its extremely urgent first-class letters for less than $1.50, half of the minimum rate that competitors could charge; (4) USPS priority mail could be at risk to substantial competition, since its rates currently start at $2.90; (5) priority mail is the fastest growing service USPS offers, producing fiscal year 1991 revenues of about $1.8 billion; (6) private overnight delivery companies would be strong competitors to carry letters that now go by USPS priority mail; (7) USPS has a reputation for less consistent and reliable performance than its potential competitors; and (8) postal rate increases would increase the at-risk exposure of USPS services to competition.
