Charles Levenstein,John Wooding

Work, Health, and Environment Charles Levenstein,John Wooding,1997-07-19 This is an indispensable collection on the crisis of worker health and safety in the United States. This collection offers an all-important lesson for the labor movement: that problems of occupational health and safety are not merely technical problems but rather problems relating to workers' lack of control over the organization of capitalist production.

Working Time Arrangements and Social Consequences Karen Albertsen,Nordic Council of Ministers,2008-02-18 The organisation of our working life has undergone radical changes within the last few decades. The global 24-hour-economy has significantly influenced the way working life has been organised. The new forms of organisation have created a pressure for a more flexible and more variable working time arrangements. The purposes of the report are: (1) to summarise the international scientific knowledge with regard to social consequences of long and irregular working hours and employee influence over working hours and (2) to describe the context of the labour market in the different Nordic countries and to describe and give examples of Nordic research projects focusing on the social consequences of the organisation of working hours.

The Cambridge Handbook of Technology and Employee Behavior Richard N. Landers,2019-02-14 Experts from across all industrial-organizational (IO) psychology describe how increasingly rapid technological change has affected the field. In each chapter, authors describe how this has altered the meaning of IO research within a particular subdomain and what steps must be taken to avoid IO research from becoming obsolete. This Handbook presents a forward-looking review of IO psychology's understanding of both workplace technology and how technology is used in IO research methods. Using interdisciplinary perspectives to further this understanding and serving as a focal text from which this research will grow, it tackles three main questions facing the field. First, how has technology affected IO psychological theory and practice to date? Second, given the current trends in both research and practice, could IO psychological theories be rendered obsolete? Third, what are the highest priorities for both research and practice to ensure IO psychology remains appropriately engaged with technology moving forward?
