Misreporting month of birth: Implications for nutrition research Larsen, Anna Folke,Headey, Derek D.,Masters, William A.,2017-03-09 Height-for-age z-scores (HAZs) and stunting status (HAZ<−2) are widely used to measure child nutrition and population health. However, accurate measurement of age is nontrivial in populations with low levels of literacy and numeracy, limited use of formal birth records, and weak cultural norms surrounding birthdays and calendar use. In this paper we use Demographic and Health Surveys data from 62 countries over the period 1990–2014 to describe two statistical artifacts indicative of misreporting of age. The first artifact consists of lower HAZs for children reported to be born earlier in each calendar year (resulting in implausibly large HAZ gaps between January- and December-born children), which is consistent with some degree of randomness in month of birth reporting. The second artifact consists of lower HAZs for children with a reported age just below a round age (and hence implausibly large HAZ gaps between children with reported ages just below and just above round ages), which is consistent with survey respondents rounding ages down more than they round ages up. Using simulations, we show how these forms of misreporting child age can replicate observed patterns in the data, and that they have small impacts on estimated rates of stunting but important implications for research that relies on birth timing to identify exposure to various risks, particularly seasonal shocks. Moreover, the misreporting we identify differs from conventional age-heaping concerns, implying that the metrics described above could constitute useful markers of measurement error in nutrition surveys. Future research should also investigate ways to reduce these errors.

Colorstrology Michele Bernhardt,2005 Four out of 10 North Americans read their horoscope daily, 10 out of 10 have a birthday, and almost all of them see the world in living colour.Colorstrology, already with a highly successful website at colorstrology.com, infuses elements of astrology and numerology with the spirituality of colour to create a colour profile for every day of the year. Cleverly packaged with 32 pages of perforated colour chips, this new genre of metaphysical fun will bridge the consumer gap between the house-proud urbanite and the barefoot spiritualist.Colorstrology, the company, is rolling out an entire line of branded products, from cosmetics and jewellery to cards and flowers, but this is the only comprehensive book available by the author who New York magazine calls a must-see phenomenon.

Feeding Infants and Children from Birth to 24 Months National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Health and Medicine Division,Food and Nutrition Board,Committee on Scoping Existing Guidelines for Feeding Recommendations for Infants and Young Children Under Age 2,2020-08-28 Recommendations for feeding infants and young children have changed substantially over time owing to scientific advances, cultural influences, societal trends, and other factors. At the same time, stronger approaches to reviewing and synthesizing scientific evidence have evolved, such that there are now established protocols for developing evidence-based health recommendations. However, not all authoritative bodies have used such approaches for developing infant feeding guidance, and for many feeding questions there is little or no sound evidence available to guide best practices, despite the fact that research on infant and young child feeding has expanded in recent decades. Summarizing the current landscape of feeding recommendations for infants and young children can reveal the level of consistency of existing guidance, shed light on the types of evidence that underpin each recommendation, and provide insight into the feasibility of harmonizing guidelines. Feeding Infants and Children from Birth to 24 Months collects, compares, and summarizes existing recommendations on what and how to feed infants and young children from birth to 24 months of age. This report makes recommendations to stakeholders on strategies for communicating and disseminating feeding recommendations.

MY BABY LIFE AND HEALTH FROM BIRTH THROUGH THE FIRST MONTH DR.ABDELHADI ABDELGABBAR ABDELHADI MBBS, MRCP, FRCPCH,2024-02-21 The challenges and excitements are always there, whether this is your first baby or one of many children. Your experience and others count all the time. However, every baby is different and hence the joy of discovering your baby attributes and creating the most suitable atmosphere for the new jewel, you, and the family. This book shall outline for you the normal care facets from birth to one month. The various health challenges from birth to the end of first month are discussed. I shall bring to your attention areas which require medical consultations and highlights areas where you should not worry. This book is mainly for babies who are born at term or close to term. A separate book for preterm babies is coming out soon. A further book to cover health issues and developmental progress from 1 month to 1 year is planned. The areas covered in this book include almost all the challenges during birth and hospital stay. It also covers day to day issues from nappy changes, bathing time, to excessive crying, and sleep. The language orientation is biased towards mothers, but the book is written for parents, grandparents, and carers. Suggestions for new topics in later editions are most welcome.
