They Shall See His Face Linda Banks, Robert Banks, 2021-02-25 Amy Oxley Wilkinson was a well-known missionary in both China and the West in the early twentieth century. Initially setting up a mission station in a remote area of Fujian Province, she became aware of the way blind children were neglected, hidden, or abandoned in China at the time. After finding a blind boy left to die in a ditch, she established an innovative Blind Boys School in Fuzhou. Meanwhile her husband, Dr. George Wilkinson, set up the city's first hospital and introduced a program to address the pervasive curse of opium addiction. Amy's holistic and vocational approach to disability education brought her national and later international recognition. In 1920, the president of the new Chinese republic awarded her the Order of the Golden Grain, the highest honor a foreigner could receive. Two years later, Amy and the school's brass band toured England and performed before Queen Mary. Amy's story highlights the significance of contributions by women missionaries to the development of early modern China, and is a challenge to anyone committed to making their life count for others. Her Blind School remains a major institution in Fuzhou to this day.

Conference Management System Hui Guan, 2001 Internet has been recognized and accepted by the public and organizations around the world as a new and exciting opportunity for expanding the management through WWW site and changing the way those companies, large and small, do business. Conference Management System (CMS)--a web-based information and database management application system is developed to provide the solution to a large academic information management system for international professional conference. CMS consists of a 3-tier client/server application framework. CMS object is not a monolithic piece of code; instead, it is more like a Lego of cooperating parts that we can break apart and then reassemble along the 3-tier client/server line. The front tier displays the visual aspects of the CMS. These visual objects typically live on the client. The middle tier works with the server objects that represent the persistent data and the CMS logic functions. The back tier is the database that stores all the system information, and it can also be administrated without influences from the front and middle tier. Middle-tier server objects interact with their clients (the view objects) and implement the logic function of the CMS. The main functions of Conference Management System (CMS) are to interactively collect conference papers and their corresponding information from the web site, putting them into database and then allocate these papers among the Program Committee members. Also it provides all the information to the General Chair and assists administrating the Conference Management System and database.
