Love and Work Mieke Polderman, 2014-09-01 Is there interaction between love and work? If so, in what ways does it appear? The main incentive for this research is the notable increase of American and Dutch people who wish to spend more and more of their time working and who feel useless and robbed of their identity when separated from their jobs. It seems that work is considered more fulfilling and satisfying than love, which can be undermined by failing relationships, tension, depression, violence, addiction, crime or angry and unmanageable children. Whereas Proust described love in a milieu where most of the work was done by servants and artists, Freud was convinced that love and work were the two main pillars of society. This view has been echoed by psychologists, sociologists, philosophers and novelists. However, a new phenomenon is that men and women share love and work. Finding the right balance between the two is a hot topic in "how to"

books, newspaper and magazine articles but the underlying connections have received little if any scrutiny. In fact it may well be a mission impossible since, as the Frankfurt School asserted, the capitalist powers, in search of profit, urge politicians to lure men, women and children onto the work floor by telling them work is a duty that not only will provide disposable income but also happiness and fulfillment in life. Hence people internalize this message without asking themselves why continuous consumption is more important than giving and receiving love, which they crave but seldom find. Although focusing on middle-class people between the ages of twenty five and forty who are travelling the "highway of life", have paid jobs, a relationship of at least three years and children, this study should be of interest to everyone.

Ons koloniale verleden in vijftig voorwerpen de Volkskrant, 2023-10-26 Een nieuwe kijk op onze koloniale geschiedenis aan de hand van 50 voorwerpen. Een vernieuwend en completer beeld van ons koloniale verleden. Het Nederland van nu is gevormd door ons koloniale verleden: van alledaagse dingen als de koffie die we drinken en de suiker die we erin doen, tot de eigen familiegeschiedenis of die van de mensen om ons heen. Lang is over dat koloniale verleden eenzijdig verteld, maar de laatste jaren hebben activisten, wetenschappers, musea en journalisten steeds vaker de schijnwerper gericht op verhalen en mensen die onderbelicht bleven. Nieuwsgierig naar die verhalen nodigde 'de Volkskrant' elf experts uit om een lijst samen te stellen van vijftig voorwerpen die een verrassende blik werpen op onze koloniale geschiedenis. Deze vijftig verhalen worden geschreven door verschillende auteurs – van jonge historici tot bekende schrijvers. 'Ons koloniale verleden in vijftig voorwerpen' biedt daarmee een vernieuwend en completer beeld van ons koloniale verleden.

Journalism of Attachment Nel Ruigrok, 2005 The pictures of emaciated men behind barbed wire in Omarska, widely disseminated throughout international media in August 1992, touched everyone's conscience and acted as a catalyst for international involvement in the Bosnian war. Journalists embarked on a moral crusade for military intervention in the conflict. This new journalistic practice, labeled as journalism of attachment, has become the title of this volume. It perceives reporters as participants in the conflicts they report and, as a consequence, argues that they should take part in the public debate about the conflict. Being partial, attached journalists provide the public with a Manichean picture about the good guys and bad guys in the conflict. Moreover, they cover the events in such a way as to motivate public action to do something about the situation. With respect to Bosnia, Dutch journalists, in the name of a higher moral duty, embarked on a crusade and adopted the role of heroic fighter for the oppressed, rather than impartial mediator between events and audience. Drawing on an extensive content analysis of news coverage about the Bosnian war, this study describes the extent to which, and the forms in which, the phenomenon of journalism of attachment was reflected in Dutch newspapers while covering the Bosnian war. It also discusses the consequences of this phenomenon for the objectivity and credibility of the news. Nel Ruigrok is a lecturer at the Amsterdam School of Communications Research at the University of Amsterdam and a researcher at the Dutch News Monitor, a project of the Press Institute Foundation.

Racist Violence and the State Rob Witte, 2014-09-11 Racist Violence and the State is the first serious study to apply a comparative research-based approach to the study of racist violence in Britain, France and The Netherlands since 1945. Setting racist violence within a historical background of the post-imperialist legacy, the author presents an accessible, fascinating and highly original analysis of the development of public and state attitudes to racist violence over the past 50 years.

That City is Mine! Cordula Rooijendijk, 2005

Annotation. This thesis is about urban ideal images. It is about dreams - not fictitious beliefs, but dreams that humankind can realize tomorrow. It is about images from intellectuals, pastry cooks, urban planners and firemen. About people who deeply care about their cities, about their hopes, frustrations, anger and optimism. They describe their ideals in city debates to gain support, and try to eliminate those with different urban ideal images. They grouse, cuddle, quarrel, adore allies and blacken enemies. But are they successful? Do people change their urban ideal images because of these discussions? Does the local planning council change their plans because they conflict with ideals of citizens? The answers can be found in this book. This title can be previewed in Google Books -

De laatste krant Bram Logger, Roelof de Vries, 2011 De krantenindustrie heeft te maken met dalende oplages en een vergrijzend abonneebestand. Het valt bijna uit te rekenen wanneer de laatste lezer doodgaat. De vraag is wat de kranten met het internet aanmoeten, waar nieuws gratis wordt weggeven. Want juist digitale media lijken nodig om te overleven. Maar hoe? Telecomgigant KPN en uitgeefreus PCM dachten in 2007 de oplossing te weten en sloegen de handen ineen. Samen begonnen ze DAG, een 'mediumonafhankelijk nieuwsplatform'. DAG zou de Nederlandse nieuwsbeleving ingrijpend moeten veranderen. Nieuws op je mobiel, op schermen in de trein, online én op papier. Maar anderhalf jaar en tientallen miljoenen euro's na de eerste verschijning werd de gratis krant alweer opgedoekt. Wat gebeurde er achter de schermen?

Comparative Law and Regulation Francesca Bignami, David Zaring, 2016-09-30 Governance by regulation – rules propounded and enforced by bureaucracies – is taking a growing share of the sum total of governance. Once thought to be an American phenomenon, it is now a central form of state action in every part of the world, including Europe, Latin America, and Asia, and it is at the core of much international lawmaking. In Comparative Law and Regulation, original contributions by leading scholars in the field focus both on the legal dimension of regulation and on how this dimension operates in those places that have turned to regulation to meet their obligations.
