WNAX 570 Radio Marilyn Kratz,Stan Ray,2006 Life on the northern plains was lonely in the early 20th century. Farmers and ranchers went for weeks without hearing any voices other than those of their families. Then, in 1922, Al Madson, proprietor of a Yankton radio parts shop, made a radio transmitter. He formed a broadcasting company, and on November 25, 1922, WNAX broadcast its first program. People of the northern plains now had a daily visitor. Gurney Seed and Nursery Company owned the station for its first 16 years, adding distinctive innovations to its programming. In its constant commitment to agriculture, the station has influenced the history of the five-state area it covers. Lawrence Welk got his start there. Wynn Speece, known as the Neighbor Lady, still broadcasts daily after starting at WNAX in 1941.

Informed by linguistic thinking and compiled by an A-team of authors, this book provides just the kind of vocabulary that students need for university studies in English.” Professor Stephen Matthews, Professor of Linguistics, School of Humanities, The University of Hong Kong “This book will certainly be a valuable resource for all tertiary students in Hong Kong. Writing academic English, with its range of specialized vocabulary and distinctive stylistic features, is a challenge, even for very accomplished English speakers. The authors of this book provide a wealth of examples, explained and illustrated in context, to help students gain a command of this register. The book can be used as
