AIR CRASH INVESTIGATIONS CAPTAIN IN PANIC The Crash of Armavia Flight 967 Hans Griffioen, editor,2012-09-01 On 2 May 2006 Armavia Flight RNV 967, an Airbus A320, was on its way from Zvartnots (Yerevan, Armenia) to Adler (Sochi, Russia). There were 113 occupants on board: 105 passengers (including 5 children and 1 baby), 2 pilots,1 aircraft engineer and 5 flight attendants. Upon approaching Sochi there was confusion in regard to the weather for the scheduled landing. Finally the captain decided to return to Zvartnots, a short while later he reconsidered his decision and started the approach to Sochi after all. Just before final landing air traffic control told the captain to abort the landing. At 22:13 the aircraft struck the water, it broke up on impact, killing all aboard. The investigation concluded that the crash of Armavia Flight 967 was a Controlled Flight Into Terrain (CFIT), specifically water, while conducting a climbing manoeuvre, after an aborted approach, along with inadequate control inputs from the Captain to Sochi airport at night with weather conditions below landing minimums for runway 06.

Flight 967 Brad Williams,1963 On the night of November 15, 1959, a DC-7 with 42 persons aboard took off from Tampa International Airport on a regularly scheduled flight to New Orleans. It was a starlit night, and good weather conditions were reported all along the route. At 12:46 a.m. the plane was picked up clearly on the radar at Houma, Louisiana--but within five minutes the blip had veered like a startled bird and vanished abruptly from the screen. This was the moment of death for everyone aboard--and the start of a mystery that has never been officially solved, in part because only nine of the bodies have been recovered, and the plane itself lies embedded in Mississippi mud. But there are many--author Brad Williams among them--who are convinced that the crash of Flight 967 was the climax of an intricately plotted mass murder. Elements: a botched abortion case in California; an air travel insurance policy, purchased less than ten minutes before Flight 967 left Tampa--by a man his family believed to be in Atlanta; a rendezvous in the Arizona desert; and the silence of a man serving a sentence in Alcatraz. In preparation of this book, Brad Williams interviewed in depth all the people connected in any important way with the crash--airline and government officials, families of the victims, even the wife of his suspect. And he tells the story swiftly and surely, a story that is at once a vivid portrayal of the complexities of commercial aviation today and a real-life mystery that comes to a sensational conclusion.--Adapted from book jacket.

Two Books of Ezekiel Ingrid E. Lilly,2012-06-22 Employing text-critical, literary, and codicological analysis, this book shows the significance of papyrus 967 for understanding the book of Ezekiel's textual transmission and status as a variant literary edition.

Nixon, Ford and the Abandonment of South Vietnam J. Edward Lee,H.C. "Toby" Haynsworth,2002-04-11 South Vietnam fell because of events occurring thousands of miles away from the battlefields--in China, the Soviet Union, Latin America, the Middle East, and Washington's corridors of power, along protest lines, and around America's dinner tables. These other wars being fought by American presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford profoundly impacted what happened in Vietnam. This work examines those other conflicts and the political, social, and economic factors involved with them that distracted and crippled the presidencies of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford and led to the eventual abandonment of the U.S.-supported South Vietnamese regime. Nixon entered office with the goal of bringing the world together, but saw that goal ruined by the 1973 war in the Middle East, preoccupations with China and the Soviet Union, a weak economy, Watergate, and his disgraceful exit from the White House. Ford's presidency was tainted almost from the beginning because of the pardon he granted to Nixon, but the American public, tired of war and concerned about the economy, was ready to hear that the war had come to an end. An argument is presented that the war could have been won if the other wars had been fought by presidents willing to honor the American commitment to its allies in South Vietnam.
