The Color of Autumn Randolph J. Giles,2015-02-19 What is love? It's one of the questions in life that has run through everyone's mind at one time or another. Not many people can describe what it means to love. Some people have been in love and some people have been in love so deeply that everyone around them can feel it in their souls. And sometimes, love balances on the fragile line that separates soul-wrenching happiness and jealousy and envy. True love can stand the test of time. True love makes it impossible to label it with simple words. There's no mountain high enough to climb to achieve it, there's no sea deep enough to swim across for it. True love is so strong that you can find that someone wherever they are and there's nothing that can stand in your way. True love is like the changing of the leaves. Every year, the metamorphosis begins. From green to amber, from amber to orange. And then the leaf slowly falls from the tree, only to rebuild itself once again, bringing with it new life. Love can withstand the falling of the leaves, for love is many things, many colors. Love, like the tree and its leaves, is life itself. Read and discover love. Discover The Colors of Autumn.
