Tom LaFarge

Nod Fanny Howe, 1998 The central figures of this fiction, Irene and Cloda, interact with one another and the man who has encamped in their ghost-, now guest-room, as if playing out the lives of the Brontes to a packed theater audience.

One Thousand and One-second Stories Taruho Inagaki, 1998 Writing from the 1920s to the 1970s, Taruho Inagaki created and imagined short tales of astonishing worlds. While other writers were learning the effective use of verbs and adjectives, Taruho explored aeroplane construction and flying in his teens. He entered literature from the outside. Mishima, the traditionalist who committed ritualistic suicide, always held a high opinion of Inagaki.

Children of Clay Raymond Queneau, 1998 Long considered a writer's writer, Raymond Queneau (1903-1976) has gradually come to be recognized as one of the major voices in twentieth-century literature. Queneau's fifth novel, Les Enfants du limon, was published in 1938. It is an extraordinary novel, stretching the boundaries of the genre, and has been called the masterpiece of Queneau's pre-war period. Queneau says of the story: The plot involves three groups of characters: one formed by the grocer Gramigni, devoted to Saint Anthony of Padua, the maid Clemence, who plays the piano, young Bossu, of bitter destiny, and the humble folk of La Ciotat, where the story begins; the second, by the various members of the Claye-Chambernac-Hachamoth family, wealthy industrialists prey to various eccentricities...; the third, by M. Chambernac and his secretary Purpulan, a 'poor devil.' All of this is spun against a subtly-drawn allegorical background. Realism and social criticism intermingle with fantasy, while the boundary between lunacy and sanity is increasingly called into question by the irrational activities of the children of Claye.

Switchback, Or, Lost Child in the Terror Zone Murray Mednick, 1997 In a neutral area of the Terror Zone, two women await to cross the range of gunfire, one with a baby carriage, the other on bicycle. Both have faced death many times, and the discussion they have which makes up the content of Mednick's jazz operetta reveals a horrifying world in which there is little hope for a future - much like the inner-city ghettos of today. Yet these women are proud, stubborn, insistent in their intent to live more normal lives and to resume their movement up the switchback. The ending is as inevitable as tomorrow morning's headlines.

After Douglas Messerli, 1998 Beginning in the late 1970s poet, dramatist and fiction writer Douglas Messerli began casually translating poems that he had difficulty comprehending in other translations. Describing these sometimes loosely translated works as poems after the originals, he began experimenting in his own poetry with some of the poetic techniques and themes he had worked with in the poems of other languages. In 1993 he began pairing the poems he had written with the poems after other writers.

Bedouin Hornbook Nathaniel Mackey, 1997

The Cadence of a Neighboring Tribe Luigi Ballerini, 1997 In the final section, Ballerini pushes the language further, breaking the laws of speech, as he works toward the tenuous inflection of the real.

The Merovingians, Or, The Total Family Heimito von Doderer, 1996 The Merovingians is a satire which resets into the 20th century a battle for dynastic control in ancient Germany.

The Captain of the Butterflies Cees Nooteboom, 1997 The first English-language collection of poetry by the prize-winning, contemporary Dutch novelist and essayist offers a wry mix of avant-garde language and precise, realistic images. Original. IP.

Nothing the Sun Could Not Explain Michael Palmer, Régis R. Bonvicino, Nelson Ascher, 1997 In an ongoing series of major world poetries (From the Other Side of the Century was the first), this anthology of new Brazilian poetry represents some of the more exciting writing being done in Brazil and South America.

Republics of Reality Charles Bernstein, 2000 At once the most paradoxically controversial and popular, accessible and most difficult of the L=A=N=G=U=A=G=E poets, Bernstein is also the writer of that group who strove early on to experiment with the extremes of its newly minted methods. Whether highlighting the synaesthesia of the word in its isolation or in the plain phrase as it operates in daily life to convey our most banal thoughts, this collection of long out-of-print chapbooks -- none of these poems have appeared in any of Bernstein's many breakthrough volumes, such as Islets/Irritations (1983) or Dark City (1994) -- provides a unique overview of his career, and adds to the range of his impressive canon of major and minor works. The first poem from the 1976 volume Parsing titled Sentences, will surprise anyone expecting text-over-speech, as it is practically a litany of anxieties, attitudes and stuttering intensities. This attention to spoken language makes such dense works as Poem (from 1978's Shade) both welcoming and discomforting, expressionistically cinematic but not without its moments of eye-wink satiric narrative. In the short poems collected in The Absent Father in Dumbo and Residual Rubbernecking, Bernstein takes the project far from the austere fragments of the early works and deep into a purposely purple and unbeautiful lyricism: Such mortal slurp to strain this sprawl went droopy/Gadzooks it seems would bend these slopes in girth/None trailing failed to hear the ship looks loopey/Who's seen it nailed uptight right at its berth. Bernstein always manages to find the furthest reaches of any norms of good taste (be it mainstream or avant-garde), creating a poetics that reveals the social codes hiding behind all of poetry's tropes and forms. Though many of the later poems here seem unfocused and minor compared to the fabulous and ambitious early chapbooks, the volume as a whole presents as many promises as it does relevant problems, as many beauties as it does strange new imaginings.

A Blind Cat Black ; And, Orthodoxies Ece Ayhan, 1997

Sea of Cortez and Other Plays John Steppling, 1996 Writing on the play Sea of Cortez in El-ephant, Sun & Moon publisher Douglas Messerli noted of Steppling's work: In Steppling's world people are what they are, doomed to suffer their own predetermined destinies. There is no hidden money; no escape from the forces that be - natural or man-made. Guilt is inexpressible. In each scene the characters must begin all over again, the effect of which is to point up Steppling's underlying Romantic sensibility. For even while the figures of his plays have no actual hope of communication, they forever remain on the verge of possibility. Face to face the figures almost scream out not only for communication, but for a simple caress, even a touch; but the dark surrounding silence serves as a kind of coitus interruptus, and the characters are forced to sink back into their determined alienation. Desire is all they are left.

Barnesbook Jackson Mac Low, 1996 Long an admirer of the work of Djuna Barnes, noted poet Jackson Mac Low used five of her works as the source material to which he applied the method of involving irregularly biased random digit triplets to lead...to a chance-determined number of sentences in these works and to mix them. He then entered each group of mixed sentences into the DIATEST program and edited the output. The result is a wonderful nonintentional work that whispers Barnes's incredible words something quick into the ear. In this work the distinguished American poet - winner of the 1994 America Award for Poetry - continues to explore the dynamics and excitement of the American language and its meaning.

Terror of Earth Tom LaFarge, 1996 Lovers of literature will discover in La Farge's remarkable work a host of radical, occasionally shocking, yet unfailingly poetic renderings of familiar favorites such as The Fox and the Crow, The Wolf and the Lamb, and The Matron of Ephesus, among others. Stories such as The Image Breaker and Marion and Alison recast classic sexual themes with appropriately erotic language for 1990s readers.

The Theater of the Ears Valère Novarina, 1996 Recognized throughout Europe as one of the major international playwrights, Valère Novarina is here introduced to American audiences with a brilliant essay, In Praise of Solecism, by the translator, and with essays by Novarina on his ideas for drama and performance. Together, these essays introduce the brilliant mind of this dramatist, director, stage designer, painter, and performance artist.

Plant Introductions ,1929

The Canadian National Record for Swine ,1918

Click-rose Dominique Fourcade,1996 In Click-Rose, originally published in France in 1984, Dominique Fourcade explores the idea of rose in a series of quick zooming on and zeroing in on scenes, memories, ideas, associations, and other forms. As if taking the opposite tack from Stein's famed anti-symbolist proclamation a rose is a rose is a rose, Fourcade finds meaning in all notions of rose including its own disappearance. Like a series of linguistic snap-shots, Fourcade's writing stacks up rosy events, memories, and mischief enough for a lifetime.

Rosa Knut Hamsun,1997 Winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature, Hamsun is beloved for numerous novels written from the 1890s through the 1930s. Rosa, whose characters are related to those in his Pan, was originally one of his most popular fictions. This new translation reveals, for the first time, the linguistic and structural subtleties of Hamsun's language and storytelling art.
