The Little Lane Prince Dinah Maria Mulock Craik,2020-03-08 By six in the morning all the royal household had dressed itself in its very best; and then the little Prince was dressed in his magnificent christening robe; which he did not like at all, but kicked and screamed like any common baby. When he had calmed down, they carried him to the bed where the Queen lay.She kissed and blessed him, and then she gave him up with a gentle smile, saying she hoped he would be very good, that it would be a very nice christening, and all the guests would enjoy themselves, and turned peacefully over on her bed. She was a very uncomplaining person-the Queen, and her name was Dolorez.Everything went on as if she had been present. All, even the King himself, had grown used to her absence, for she was not strong, and for years had not joined in the gaieties. The noble company arrived from many countries; also the four-and-twenty godfathers and godmothers, who had been chosen with care, as the people who would be most useful to his Royal Highness should he ever want friends.They came, walking two and two, with their coronets on their heads-dukes and duchesses, princes and princesses; they all kissed the child and pronounced the name which each had given him. Then the four-and-twenty names were shouted out, one after another, and written down, to be kept in the state records.
