Human Development J. G. Kamba Muzenga,2003 Cette etude est consacree aux pronoms substitutifs et aux pronoms possessifs dans les langues bantoues (branche Benue-Congo de la famille Niger-Congo). Dans ces langues qui possèdent un systeme de classes, les deux types de pronoms sont etroitement lies. En effet, a partir de la classe 2, le substitutif, qui est forme d'un prefixe pronominal et d'un theme -o, entre dans la constitution du pronom possessif. Il est precede du pronom connectif dont la fonction est en general d'unir un nom ou un pronom a son complement. par contre, aux participants (1ere et 2eme personnes du singulier et du pluriel) ainsi qu'a la classe 1, les structures des deux pronoms sont variables et les liens qui les unissent sont nettement moins evidents. A partir de l'analyse des donnees recueillies dans pres de 300 langues bantoues, l'auteur nous propose les reconstructions protobantoues et tente d'expliquer les evolutions particulieres, regionales ou locales, en faisant appel a des mecanismes historiques bien connus.

Regulating Data Monopolies Jingyuan Ma,2022-01-24 This book analyzes the business model of enterprises in the digital economy by taking an economic and comparative perspective. The aim of this book is to conduct an in-depth analysis of the anti-competitive behavior of companies who monopolize data, and put forward the necessity of regulating data monopoly by exploring the causes and characteristics of their anti-competitive behavior. It studies four aspects of the differences between data monopoly and traditional monopolistic behavior, namely defining the relevant market for data monopolies, the entry barrier, the problem of determining the dominant position of data monopoly, and the influence on consumer welfare. It points out the limitations of traditional regulatory tools and discusses how new regulatory methods could be developed within the competition legal framework to restrict data monopolies. It proposes how economic analytical tools used in traditional anti-monopoly law are facing challenges and how competition enforcement agencies could adjust regulatory methods to deal with new anti-competitive behavior by data monopolies.

The End of Fashion Adam Geczy, Vicki Karaminas, 2018-11-01 Attitudes to fashion have changed radically in the twenty-first century. Dress is increasingly approached as a means of self-expression, rather than as a signifier of status or profession, and designers are increasingly treated as 'artists', as fashion moves towards art and enters the gallery, museum, and retail space. This book is the first to fully explore the causes and implications of this shift, examining the impact of technological innovation, globalization, and the growth of the internet. The End of Fashion focuses on the ways in which our understanding of fashion and the fashion system have transformed as mass mediation and digitization continue to broaden the way that contemporary fashion is perceived and consumed. Exploring everything from the rise of online shopping to the emergence of bloggers as power elites who have revolutionized the terrain of traditional fashion reportage, this volume anatomizes a world in which runway shows now compete with live-streaming, digital fashion films, Instagram, and Pinterest. Bringing together original, cutting-edge contributions from leading international scholars, this book is essential reading for students and scholars of fashion and cultural studies, as well as anyone interested in exploring the dramatic shifts that have shaken the fashion world this century – and what they might say about larger changes within an increasingly global and digital society.
