Civil ConFLiCT? Cody T. Havard, Rhema D. Fuller, 2018 The attempt by the football coach of the University of Connecticut Huskies to start a rivalry with the University of Central Florida Knights by creating the Civil ConFLiCT trophy has been met with silence and avoidance by the Knights football coach. This case study asks students to use existing research on the phenomenon of rivalry in sport to determine if the relationship between the University of Connecticut and the University of Central Florida in fact represents a rivalry. With the recent influence of conference realignment on rivalry, it is important that athletic departments better understand how rivalries are created and grow. This case study also asks students to determine how this relationship can better be promoted to fans, or if the athletics department at the University of Connecticut should focus on other schools in the American Athletic Conference as potential rival teams.

Genesis of the Rising, 1912-1916 Christopher M. Kennedy (Ph. D.), 2010 The Easter Rising of 1916 had a lasting effect upon Ireland, with many viewing it as a watershed in the history of modern Ireland and concurring with Yeats that a «terrible beauty was born». Seeking to clarify the state of nationalist opinion in the period before the Rising, Genesis of the Rising is as much an undertaking in social psychology as it is a social and political history. It strives to debunk many longstanding theories, most significantly the turning of the tide thesis, which asserts that British blunders in the wake of the failed Rising turned the tide in public opinion toward the course envisioned by the Rebels. Genesis of the Rising contends that as early as 1912, with the introduction of the Third Home Rule Bill, through the start of the Great War, and right up to Easter 1916, the tide in nationalist opinion had been turning, albeit silently, and that the Rising was a catalytic force that accelerated an already ongoing process. It reveals a dichotomy in nationalist opinion between covert views and misleading, overt opinion when it suggests that it was the Rising and the executions that subsequently forced nationalist opinion to show its true colors. In effect, the tide had begun to turn long before Easter 1916; and constitutional nationalism, as represented by the Third Home Rule Bill and the Irish Parliamentary Party, was giving way to some aspect of physical-force nationalism.
