David Kirk

The Entrepreneurial Society David B. Audretsch, 2007-07-02 Previous generations enjoyed the security of lifelong employment with a sole employer. Public policy and social institutions reinforced that security by producing a labor force content with mechanized repetition in manufacturing plants, and creating loyalty to one employer for life. This is no longer the case. Globalization and new technologies have triggered a shift away from capital and towards knowledge. In today's global economy, where jobs and factories can be moved quickly to low-cost locations, the competitive advantage has shifted to ideas, insights, and innovation. But it is not enough just to have new ideas. It takes entrepreneurs to actualize them by championing them to society. Entrepreneurship has emerged as the proactive response to globalization. In this book, award-winning economist David B. Audretsch identifies the positive, proactive response to globalization--the entrepreneurial society, where change is the cutting edge and routine work is inevitably outsourced. Under the managed economy of the cold war era, government policies around the world supported big business, while small business was deemed irrelevant and largely ignored. The author documents the fundamental policy revolution underway, shifting the focus to technology and knowledge-based entrepreneurship, where start-ups and small business have emerged as the driving force of innovation, jobs, competitiveness and growth. The role of the university has accordingly shifted from tangential to a highly valued seedbed for coveted new ideas with the potential to create not just breathtaking new ventures but also entire new industries. By understanding the shift from the managed economy and the emergence of the entrepreneurial society, individuals, businesses, and communities can learn how to proactively harness the opportunities afforded by globalization in this new entrepreneurial society.

World Scientific Reference On Entrepreneurship, The (In 4 Volumes) , 2016-12-28 This book examines an important economic development in East Asia during the first decade of the 21st century. Whereas regional arrangements were, with the sole significant exception of ASEAN, conspicuously absent before 2000, they have proliferated since 2000 in both the monetary and trade areas. The book places this political development in the changing nature of the national economies, especially their increasing integration into regional and global value chains with the fragmentation of production processes. This is a freshly written, coherent analysis of the topic, drawing upon (updated) material from a series of articles that the author has published on the subject over the years. Although the book is based on theoretical and, especially, empirical analysis of regionalism, it is written in a non-technical style accessible to a wide range of readers. The book is likely to be adopted as supplementary reading for university courses on Asian economies, whether be it in area studies or economics/political economy disciplines.

A Research Agenda for Entrepreneurship and Innovation David B. Audretsch, Erik E. Lehmann, Albert N. Link, 2019 This book identifies and explains the most salient opportunities for future research in the fields of entrepreneurship and innovation. It draws on the experiences and insights of leading scholars in the world on a broad array of rich and promising topics, ranging from entrepreneurial ecosystems to finance and to the role of universities.

Innovation and Entrepreneurship in the Academia Erik E. Lehmann, Michele Meoli, Stefano Paleari, 2021-12-19 This book aims to contribute to the understanding and evaluation of the processes through which innovative knowledge is created and translated to entrepreneurial technological advantage in higher education institutions. The chapters included in this edited volume discuss new trends related to the impact of policies on innovation and entrepreneurial activity in universities, by providing a variety of insights from both an individual and an institutional perspective and with reference to a number of different contexts and units of analysis. The integration of both qualitative and quantitative approaches, as well as the multidisciplinary approach that characterizes this volume makes it possible to provide an in-depth understanding of today's dynamics. The volume will be of relevance to scholars, students and researchers interested in Entrepreneurship, Higher Education, Economics and Technology Management. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Industry & Innovation.

EAI International Conference on Technology, Innovation, Entrepreneurship and Education Ping Zheng, Vic Callaghan, David Crawford, Tiina Kymäläinen, Angelica Reyes-Munoz, 2019-06-08 This book presents the proceedings of the 2nd EAI International Conference on Technology, Innovation, Entrepreneurship and Education (TIE' 2018), which took place at Ravensbourne University London, London, UK, on September 4, 2018. The central theme of the conference is emerging technologies in relation to business, education, social and political needs that make modern society flourish. The proceedings feature papers from a cross-disciplinary audience that explore the process of creativity and innovation. The goal is that the various disciplines can learn from each other and see how they might benefit from the cross-fertilization of practices.

Innovation and Entrepreneurship Are in the Waterloo Genome Kenneth McLaughlin, 2015-09 Innovation and Entrepreneurship are in the Waterloo Genome: A history of the culture of innovation and entrepreneurship at the University of Waterloo. Explains the origin of the concept for an engineering faculty developed in cooperation with Canadian industries. Extends the concept to each of the six faculties. Includes the creation of Waterloo's innovative policies of professor's ownership of Intellectual Property in both patents and in the licensing agreements. Deals with the development of major spin off companies based on professorial research and the creation of a Faculty of Mathematics and an Institute for Computer Research as well as separate faculties of environment and applied health science and faculties of arts and science. Includes creation of Quantum-Nano Centre and integrated research from six faculties. Looks at the impact of the University of Waterloo on the larger community.--

Entrepreneurial Universities João J. Ferreira, Alain Fayolle, Vanessa Ratten, Mário Raposo, 2018-08-31 With an increasing focus on the knowledge and service economies, it is important to understand the role that entrepreneurial universities play through collaboration in policy and, in turn, the impact they have on policy. The authors evaluate how universities engage with communities while also balancing stakeholder considerations, and explore how universities should be managed in the future to integrate into global society effectively.

Effective Knowledge Management Systems in Modern Society Jennex, Murray E., 2018-07-20 Within the past ten years, tremendous innovations have been brought forth in information technology and knowledge management. Some of the key technical innovations have included the introduction of social media, artificial intelligence, as well as improved network connectivity and capacity. Effective Knowledge Management Systems in Modern Society is a critical scholarly resource that presents an overview of how technical, social, and process changes are impacting the way knowledge systems are being designed. Featuring coverage on a broad range of topics such as knowledge engineering, cognitive ergonomics, and interorganizational knowledge, this book is geared toward consultants, practitioners, and researchers seeking current research on how new approaches in knowledge management impact information technology professionals.

Entrepreneurship George Vozikis, Timothy Mescon, Howard Feldman, Eric W Liguori, 2014-12-18 The authors present core concepts of entrepreneurship in an easy-to-follow, logical sequence. Starting with basic definitions and an overarching conceptual framework in Part I, the book then addresses topics pertaining to Venture Initiation (Part II), Venture Management (Part III), and Venture Development (Part IV). Each chapter contains a case study in which a real-life entrepreneur, who confronts the issues of growth and competition, is followed. Venture initiation and development are key components of this book. Entrepreneurship has all the standard features that entrepreneurs-in-training need. The book's strength, however, lies in the clear, straightforward, and logical manner in which the various topics within this complex subject are presented. The book also includes learning objectives, outlines, terms, and review questions.

Dislocation: Awkward Spatial Transitions Philip Cooke, 2021-05-18 Today, the world is in the most serious turmoil it has experienced for many centuries. These multiple crises arise from the fundamental mistreatment by capitalist competition of the carrying capacity of the planet. Even before coronavirus, evidently morbid symptoms of over-development led many spatial planners to write of the threat of a new Dark Age. Many advocated a return to policy decentralisation as the Covid-19 crisis demonstrated once again the failure of 'global controller' mindsets to manage complex systems successfully. Dislocation: Awkward Spatial Transitions is a critical exploration of where spatial development processes and rules have gone wrong across many economies. The chapters lay out which mindsets have been responsible for this and gives pointers to new practices that aim to ameliorate the effects of past failings. In the first nine chapters, a mapping of key elements of the prevailing omni-crisis are summarised. These range from an exegesis of the Anthropocene, the rise of populism, the transition to neoliberalist anti-planning, and migration as planning issues with pleas for evolutionary change in spatial policy and process dynamics. Finally, a group of chapters explores the flailing as territorial governances tried to plot the rise of creative cities, 4.0 era industry and services, and in the built form, the role of 'starchitects' in city renewal. In the last part, attention is devoted to territorial innovation, knowledge recombination, sustainable mobility and, finally, green entrepreneurship, as necessary elements of a post-coronavirus, climate change mitigation and sustainable mobility set of survival strategies. The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal European Planning Studies.

Innovative Entrepreneurship in Action Giuseppina Passiante, 2020-05-13 This book analyses prevailing approaches and policies in innovative entrepreneurship. It explores the ways in which entrepreneurs learn and develop innovation-based businesses to drive increased regional competitiveness. Specifically, the contributions propose that sustainable innovation ecosystems booster innovative entrepreneurship and thus create a competitive advantage for smart and sustainable growth. It also examines the current state of entrepreneurship education, where the development of entrepreneurial abilities is considered a process of value creation—both economic and social—with the final aim to create both new start-ups and entrepreneurial mind-sets. Featuring theoretical approaches and empirical evidences, this title is appropriate for scholars, academics, students and policy makers in technology and innovation management, economics of innovation and entrepreneurship.

Innovation, Entrepreneurship and Organizations' Business Performance Milena Ratajczak-Mrozek, Tibor Mandjak, 2018 If there are concepts that have huge academic literature and are of outstanding practical significance in corporate practice, then business performance is certainly one of them. However, the authors of this special issue add interesting and exciting elements to our knowledge regarding business success and performance in many ways. This special issue underlines that business success, which has both financial and social components, depends to a great extent on the knowledge, skills, and cooperative skills of people in the organization, and their openness to the world of external and internal stakeholders. The behavior of people, when heavily influenced by the values of the organization and its associated business ethics, has a major impact on business success.

This is also true for ethically and socially controversial industries, such as pharmaceutical, alcohol and tobacco. The research results of the authors in this special issue show that different organizational frameworks and solutions can lead to the success of a business. There is, of course, no single, infallible "recipe" leading to success. However, developing project management skills and applying a project management approach within an organization can increase the organization's entrepreneurial ability. The key feature of such a solution is that the organization becomes more open to stakeholders and processes in its local environment. This also means that an organization's ability to innovate, and improve the efficiency of its innovation processes, increases. It is an exciting feature of the special issue that most of the studies deal with a specific area of the global economy, namely Central and Eastern Europe. Empirical research carried out in Poland, the Czech Republic and Hungary, and a comparative analysis of them, is a valuable contribution to the increasingly rich literature dealing with this region, as well as the academic literature in the more general sense. The first paper by Majra Hodžić and Helena Hrůzová, "A study of project management practices in the Czech Republic," addresses the importance of project management for organizations' innovation and performance. Based on the example of the Czech Republic, Hodžić and Hrůzová study current practices used in the field of project management and underline the importance of stakeholders' main demands and requests, and the level of use of project management methods. The results that are presented provide practical implications, especially for new start-ups wanting to boost their competitiveness and innovativeness, by displaying success factors for project management and the necessity for innovation in this area. The subject of project management is continued in the second paper by Katarzyna Grzesik and Katarzyna Piwowar-Sulej entitled "Project managers' competencies and leadership styles from the perspective of organizations functioning in Poland." Grzesik and Piwowar-Sulej discuss the significance of project managers' different competencies and project leadership styles, which are especially important nowadays considering the increasing dynamics of the organizations' environment. The needed and adopted competences are compared between the strictly project-oriented organizations (implementing projects for external clients) and organizations that manage projects for internal purposes. The authors identify competencies which are important for organizations' success in the area of project management and may, in turn, lead to better business performance. The importance of human capital for organizations' performance and competitive advantage is addressed in the third paper by Łukasz Bryl called "Human capital orientation and financial performance. A comparative analysis of US corporations". In the paper, Bryl verifies whether human capital oriented organizations generate a positive or even above-average financial performance due to: higher skills of employees, greater motivation and, thus, higher overall effectiveness. The paper has significant practical implications for both managers aiming at increased competitive advantage and investors in terms of the possible directions of stock market investments aimed at achieving above-average returns. Financial success and high performance may also be gained by innovativeness. In the fourth paper, "An innovation capability development process for firms in developing countries: A theoretical conceptual model," Gezahegn Tesfaye and Daniel Kitaw analyze the problem of innovation capability development. The much-needed complexity of the analysis is reflected by combining both the technical and the financial aspects of innovation capability development. The proposed model identifies three key innovation capability constructs and is of practical value, especially to organizations from developing countries, as it helps to progress the innovation capabilities more effectively. The fifth paper by Włodzimierz Sroka and Richard Szántó, "CSR and business ethics in controversial sectors: analysis of research results," addresses the issue of organizations' performance from a different perspective, namely the particular obligations toward society or the environment constituted by corporate social responsibility. Based on the example of controversial sectors of the economy (pharmaceutical, tobacco and alcohol) Sroka and Szántó examine the scale and scope of the use of business ethics principles and practices in Poland and Hungary. The analysis provides not only significant fresh insights in this field but also shows that business ethics have an influence on business success and the corporate image of organizations. The sixth paper, "The themes of entrepreneurship discourse: A data analytics approach" by Philip T. Roundy and Arben Asllani, considers the importance of the language used by entrepreneurs. Roundy and Asllani identify five dominant themes in entrepreneurship discourse which address, among other things, technology and professional investments. The analysis of the most recurring themes in entrepreneurship discourse, and their change over time, sets directions for future research and indicates the importance of entrepreneurship discourse for organizations' business success. We would like to thank all the authors for their contribution to this special issue and for sharing their research. We believe that this new research represents a valuable input to our knowledge regarding business success and organizations' performance. We also want to thank the reviewers whose comments contributed to the improvement of the papers and the whole of this special issue. We hope the articles presented here will be of interest to readers, scholars and researchers around the world, and that they will inspire them on to further scientific and practical research in the field of business performance.

You will also discover how strong leaders can become collaborators, facilitators, consensus makers, and incentive providers.

Up and to the Right Craig Toomey, 2020-04-16 In 1960, Montreal stock broker John Dobson launched an informal investment club with a close group of friends and associates, including future prime minister John Turner. His Formula Growth Fund would go on to become one of North America's most successful investment funds, consistently outperforming the Dow Jones Industrial Average and attracting the likes of legendary investor Sir John Templeton. Up and to the Right tells the story behind John Dobson's investment success as well as his many contributions to entrepreneurial education. Craig Toomey provides valuable insight into Dobson's unconventional but disciplined investment approach, his uncanny ability to predict winning stocks, and his unwavering faith in the market despite its many ups and downs. Coinciding with the sixtieth anniversary of the Formula Growth Fund, this revised edition brings the company's story up to 2019, presenting new material and case studies and describing recent developments, including how Formula Growth tripled its assets under management to $1.5 billion through the launch of a successful hedge fund platform and expansion into Asia. Based on interviews with Dobson as well as with dozens of members of his extensive network of friends, colleagues, and investment professionals, Up and to the Right is a fascinating story about a great Canadian who believed deeply in self-reliance and free enterprise as well as the value of friendship, pursuing one's passions, and working for the greater good.
