Legendary Locals of Boise Barbara Perry Bauer,Elizabeth Jacox,2015-10-05 Boise of the 21st century is very different from the tiny community established in 1863 at the crossroads of the Oregon Trail and the road to the Boise Basin gold mines. Originally known as “Boise City,” it existed as a distribution center for supplies and fresh food for miners. The development of irrigated agriculture and the expansion of transportation networks during the 20th century and an influx of pioneers from many regions of the United States helped the city grow into a technology center during the 21st century. Early residents like Tom and Julia Davis helped create a city filled with green parks and walking paths; author and illustrator Mary Hallock Foote brought Boise to the attention of the nation with her writing and illustrations; businessmen J.R. Simplot and Joe Albertson established local businesses that grew to national companies. The music of Curtis Stigers, the literature of Anthony Doerr, and the athletic prowess of Kristin Armstrong have helped focus attention on Boise, which is now recognized as one of the country’s most livable communities.

Boise: City of Trees David R. Day,BoiseDev,2022-11-21 Boise. It's the City of Trees. The city of kindness. The home of the blue turf. The place that's always changing. It's a place on the map, but also a feeling: the golden glow of the foothills, the wave from a stranger on the Greenbelt and so much more. The book tells the story of where Boise is now - and where it is going. The stories you know, and the ones you don't, illustrated with stirring photos of Boise.
