Written in Commemoration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of Elmhurst College at Elmhurst, Illinois The younger of the two boys, not yet sixteen, came dash ing through the garden, his face flushed with excitement, hold ing the mole in his hand. Look, I got him after all. About the Publisher Forgotten

Elmhurst College Magazine, 1871-1971 Elmhurst College, 2017-11-27 Excerpt from Elmhurst College Magazine, 1871-1971: The First One Hundred Years The success of the reorganization was reflected in the increasing enrollment of students, from a total of 120 in to 162 in and 173 in 192223.
Soon commuting day students began to appear, and also the first tuition fee, $100 per year. There followed a reorganization of the administration. The business responsibilities were assumed by a steward or business manager. For the first time there was an office secretary in the person of Miss Elfrieda Lang. A registrar was appointed, who also doubled as physical education director and football coach. The Reverend Robert Leon'hardt filled this post. The president was interested in promotion and public relations and news items Were released to the papers. The president began to participate in activities in the community, breaking out of the relative insularity and isolation of the earlier years. Mrs.
Schick, wife of the president, organized a Women's Auxiliary, soliciting help from the women's organizations throughout the denomination, and also enrolling willing workers from groups in Elmhurst and Chicago. They engaged in tasks from mending of clothes to interior decorating in the dormitories and also fund/raising. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare
