Honoring Their Service: Stories of Fort Fairfield High School Class of 1967 Military Veterans Peter

McKenney,2020-12-18 Forty-five members from the Fort Fairfield, Maine high school Class of 1967 served in the United States military during the Vietnam Era. Honoring Their Service recognizes and honors these military veterans by presenting their individual stories and preserving them for future generations. This book gives voice to those who have long been silent. These are the individual stories of twenty-three veterans who served in Vietnam, one of whom was killed in action there, and the twenty-two veterans who served around the globe and at home. Their small hometown of Fort Fairfield, a rural farming community in northern Maine with a proud tradition of military service, sent over two-thirds of the young men and one young woman from the Class of 1967 into military service. Their stories describe their decisions and choices about becoming a part of the US military, how and where they trained and served, and the impact that their military experiences have had on their lives. The book also includes a history of the town of Fort Fairfield, a photo gallery of the hometown focused on scenes from the '50s and '60s, an analysis of the common threads of the veterans' stories, a history of the local National Guard field artillery battalion, and an essay by a non-veteran classmate about growing up in the rural agricultural community and the impact of the Vietnam Era on the members of her high school class. Additionally, there is a reprint of a 1968 news article about five Marines from the class who enlisted and trained together. Honoring Their Service stands as both a thank you to 45 Vietnam Era veterans and a historical documentation of their service and the sacrifices that they made over half a century ago. May their stories be read and their voices be heard by future generations and by those Americans living today.
