Fortune Cookie Magic - The Offspring One Dee Dawning, 2014-11-14 BLURB The mysteries of Fortune Cookie Magic play out twenty years later, in the long awaited series, Fortune Cookie Magic - The Offspring. The adventure continues as four of the original Fortune Cookie gang lead their sons and daughters into the mysterious mythical, magical land of Hyperborea, where unicorn and goblins dwell and sex and love are the same EXCERPT Sandy had trouble keeping up with her strange behaving friend. What's your hurry? We must have purple cookies. It's dangerous. I'm trying to find Choi Lin's. Jill walked as if she was in a stupor. Through an arch, up some stairs, across a bridge, down stairs, past shop after shop, Jill looked everywhere and Sandy followed patiently. Jill walked and Sandy tailed her along a narrow hallway, across a courtyard, across a driveway, through a gateway, into a portico and...There it is. Jill entered the little shop, with Sandy trailing behind. A small, elderly Asian woman glanced at her husband, then asked Jill, May we help you? Sandy gazed around. There were powders in apothecary jars, amulets, trinkets, crystals, books on mysticism and dozens of other such items. Jill answered the woman, Yes, I hope so. I'm looking for some special fortune cookies. The man addressed her. Why do you need these cookies? We are on a quest, Jill answered almost robotically. The woman asked. In what way are they special? They make you invisible. An antique oriental vase fell to the floor and shattered. All eyes turned to Sandy who was red as a beet. Contritely, she hunched her shoulders up. Looks like I bought an antique vase. The man laughed and said, Not to worry. It cheap replica. Twenty dolla. Then the woman spoke up once more, We waiting for you. Purple cookies are expensive. How many? We need twelve. That twelve hundred dolla. Jill turned and with a vacant look in her eyes and asked, Sandy do you have twelve hundred dollars, I could borrow? Sandy walked over to stand by Jill. She had no idea what they would need invisibility for, but twelve cookies for ten people didn't sound like enough. Oh, let me buy them, sweetie. To the lady she handed five thousand dollars and said, My friend made a mistake. We need fifty purple cookies. I get. Be back! Oh, wait, just a minute please. Do you have any black cookies? No sell black cookies. Only 'The One' has. Of course. I meant green cookies. How many? Ten. Five hundred dolla. Here's five hundred and an extra hundred for the vase. I make change. No, don't bother. We're in kind of a hurry. If you would just get the cookies we'll be on our way. As the woman left, Sandy bent down and whispered. Did you say invisible? Jill looked at Sandy and recognition and alertness came to her eyes. Sandy! Where are we? How did we get here? You led us here? Jill scrunched her nose. I did? Invisible what? The man came over to Sandy and handed her a package. What's this? she demanded. You no want change, you take four urns. I'm Choi. wife Lin. Good luck on journey. Smart to take purple cookies. Remember, cookie last one day - twenty-four hours.

Platonic Marisa G. Franco, PhD,2022-09-06 Instant New York Times bestseller Is understanding the science of attachment the key to building lasting friendships and finding “your people” in an ever-more-fragmented world? How do we make and keep friends in an era of distraction, burnout, and chaos, especially in a society that often prizes romantic love at the expense of other relationships? In Platonic, Dr. Marisa G. Franco unpacks the latest, often counterintuitive findings about the bonds between us—for example, why your friends aren’t texting you back (it’s not because they hate you!), and the myth of “friendships happening organically” (making friends, like cultivating any relationship, requires effort!). As Dr. Franco explains, to make and keep friends you must understand your attachment style—secure, anxious, or avoidant: it is the key to unlocking what’s working (and what’s failing) in your friendships. Making new friends, and deepening longstanding relationships, is possible at any age—in fact, it’s essential. The good news: there are specific, research-based ways to improve the number and quality of your connections using the insights of attachment theory and the latest scientific research on friendship. Platonic provides a clear and actionable blueprint for forging strong, lasting connections with others—and for becoming our happiest, most fulfilled selves in the process.
