Evaluation of Utah Transit Authority's Connection Protection System - Final Project Report U. S. Department of Transportation,2016-01-14 The Utah Transit Authority (UTA) implemented a Connection Protection (CP) system to improve the reliability of transfers from the higher frequency light rail TRAX trains to the lower frequency bus services. The CP system examines the status of TRAX trains and issues a hold at {station name} until {time} message to buses waiting at the connecting rail stations via the bus' onboard Mobile Data Terminal (MDT), if the lateness of train is within a pre-determined threshold (e.g., three minutes). The system was completed and tested in January 2002 prior to the Winter Olympic Games in Salt Lake City. The successful implementation and operation of the CP system has received attention from the Federal Transit Administration (FTA) and the U.S. Department of Transportation (USDOT) Intelligent Transportation System (ITS) Joint Program Office (JPO) to warrant a national evaluation study.

Enhanced Planning Review of the Salt Lake and Ogden Metropolitan Area John A. Volpe National Transportation Systems Center (U.S.),1996 The FTA and FHWA have initiated a series of joint Enhanced Planning Reviews (EPRs) to assess the impact of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (ISTEA) on the planning processes conducted by the transportation agencies serving metropolitan areas. The EPRs are also intended to determine the effects of planning on transportation investment processes. The information collected in the EPRs is intended to be of assistance to individual metropolitan areas in their continuing efforts to improve transportation planning practice, and to federal agencies engaged in metropolitan planning. The EPR for Salt Lake and Ogden included a federal site visit from February 27 through March 3, 1995. At the conclusion of the site visit, the federal review team presented preliminary observations and recommendations to the local agencies taking part in the review. These observations were incorporated into a draft Overview Report which was distributed for review and comment to the Metropolitan Planning Organization and other local participants in the EPR. The Overview Report formed the basis for this Final Report, which describes the EPR in greater depth and is intended for public distribution.

Practices in No-show and Late Cancellation Policies for ADA Paratransit Rosemary G. Mathias,Transit Cooperative Research Program,2005 This synthesis documents current and innovative practices of U.S. transit agencies in the development and implementation of passenger no-show and late cancellation policies for paratransit programs operated under the regulatory requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA). It describes how some policies are administered, the community response, and their effectiveness in small, medium, and large transit agencies surveyed. It examines policies both as a way to improve system productivity, efficiency, and capacity, and as a means to better serve riders with disabilities who may experience difficulties with the advance reservation aspect of most ADA complementary paratransit operations.
